ABSTRACT

INTRODUCTION: In today's society, it is noted that various factors have contributed to and drawn attention to the care of the elderly population. One of these factors is the aging of the population. At the same time, the incidence of various forms of violence against the elderly has increased, often occurring within the family environment. Understanding that research in the social area is a vast stage, always open to new knowledge, we intend to contribute by studying the perspectives that characterize the various concepts that will be addressed here.

OBJECTIVES: Thus, this research project aims to analyze patrimonial violence from the perspective of the elderly people assisted by the Social Assistance Reference Center - CREAS Monte Castelo, in Fortaleza, Ceará.

METHODOLOGY: This is a bibliographic and documentary research, based on the available legislation on the subject, the production of some authors, as well as the use of field research and non-probabilistic sampling.

CONCLUSION: This research project does not aim to exhaust discussions on the phenomenon. However, given the above and the content expressed, we hope that this investigative process will contribute to the collection of social welfare policies and other areas of social sciences, in addition to sparking reflections on the subject studied by focusing on the daily lives of elderly people who have their rights violated, from the perspective of the subjects themselves who experience the process.

Keywords: Social Welfare. CREAS. Elderly People. Patrimonial Violence. Social Service.
